

ENGLISH AS A
SECOND LANGUAGE

ACADEMIC COURSES IN GREAT BRITAIN 1963/64

TEACHING OF ENGLISH
LINGUISTICS AND PHONETICS
ENGLISH STUDIES

The British Council
English-Teaching Information Centre
State House, High Holborn,
London, W.C.1
1963

NOTE

This publication provides a statement of courses available during the 1963/64 Session and should also be a relevant guide to 1964/65. The information it contains has been supplied by directors of courses and is published on their behalf by ETIC. For more detailed information about each course application should be made to the institution concerned.

CONTENTS

	Page
I TEACHING OF ENGLISH
University College of North Wales, Bangor.	5
University of Leeds.	6
University of London.	8
University of Manchester.	12
Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff.	13
Moray House College of Education, Edinburgh.	14
II LINGUISTICS AND PHONETICS
University College of North Wales, Bangor.	16
University of Edinburgh.	17
University of London.	19
University of Manchester.	23
III ENGLISH STUDIES
University of Exeter.	25
University of Leeds.	26
University of Nottingham.	26
Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff.	29

I. TEACHING OF ENGLISH

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF NORTH WALES, BANGOR

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	F. R. Palmer.	Professor of Linguistics.
	K. A. Owen.	Lecturer.
	A. R. Thomas.	Lecturer.
	P. H. Matthews.	Lecturer.
	R. W. P. Brasington.	Assistant Lecturer.
	P. F. R. Barnes.	Assistant Lecturer.
	D. Crystal.	Assistant Lecturer.
Content of course	A. Phonetics and especially the phonetics of English, general linguistics, the structure of English, bilingualism, principles of second language teaching. B. Teaching practice in Wales or in Spain. C. A dissertation on an approved subject.
Entrance qualifications	A degree of the University of Wales or of another approved university. The course is intended for experienced or qualified teachers proposing to teach English overseas.
Fees	£60. Amalgamation fee £6. 6. 0.
General	All overseas students are required to undertake some investigation into their own language. The study of linguistics, together with phonetics and the structure of English, forms an integral part of both this course and the postgraduate Diploma in Linguistics (q.v.). The Department has a phonetics laboratory. A language laboratory will be installed during 1963. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, University College of North Wales, Bangor, Caernarvonshire, before 1st July for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language.

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June.

Staff (1963) P. D. Strevens. Professor of Contemporary English.
S. Pit Corder. Lecturer.
J. W. Spencer. Lecturer.
June Derrick. Lecturer.

Content of course

A. Joint Course with Education:

1. Theory and practice of education, introductory courses in linguistics and phonetics and applied linguistics, and an intensive study of English language teaching materials and methods.
2. Two periods of teaching practice: in Spain and in England.
3. A dissertation: a short piece of research on an approved subject.

B. Diploma Course without Education:

1. Introductory course on linguistics, introductory and advanced courses in phonetics and applied linguistics. Description of contemporary English.
2. A choice of special subject from contemporary English literature, stylistics, phonetics or teaching method (this includes a short teaching practice in Spain).
3. A major dissertation: a longer piece of original research on an approved subject.

Entrance qualifications The course is intended primarily for British graduates proposing to teach English abroad. All students take the same introductory courses. Those who are already trained or experienced teachers take course B, while those without experience normally take course A.

Fees £100.

Number of places 1964/65 30—40.

General Research is being undertaken on grammatical descriptions of present-day English, the analysis of language in restricted situations, descriptive categories for stylistic analysis, primary school foreign language teaching. The equipment available includes a 10-booth prototype language laboratory, closed-circuit television facilities, and tape recorders. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. or Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, University of Leeds, Leeds 2, before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS, Institute of Education

Course of study	Certificate (or Graduate Certificate) in the Teaching of English as a second Language (Cert. or Grad. Cert. T.E.S.L.).
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	D. G. Burns. Supervisor. H. J. A. Taylor Lecturer in Education.
Content of course	A. Language: the nature and structure of English. B. The teaching of language: teaching methods, organisation of material, use of modern aids in language teaching. C. The study of education: language studies and the curricula of the primary and secondary school. D. Practical work: spoken English and interpretation of written English, school visits, use of audio-visual aids and equipment, a substantial amount of teaching practice.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must have a teaching qualification recognised by their territorial Ministry or Department of Education, and must have had not less than 7 years' teaching experience (3 years' in the case of graduates). The course is designed for British and overseas students.
Fees	£230.
Number of places 1964/65	At least 12, possibly more.

Overseas affiliations

Preference may be given to candidates from countries in Africa.

General

The course is intended for qualified and experienced teachers and does not provide initial training as a teacher. A 12-booth language laboratory is being installed.

Applications to The Secretary, University of Leeds, Institute of Education, The University, Leeds 2, before 28th February for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study

Postgraduate Certificate in Education.

Length of course

1 academic year: October—June.

Staff (1963)

Bruce Pattison.	Professor of Education.
A. V. P. Elliott.	Senior Lecturer.
G. L. Barnard.	Lecturer (seconded to Tanganyika).
G. Broughton.	Lecturer.
T. Stock.	Temporary Lecturer.
J. Barnett.	Temporary Lecturer.

Content of course

A. The study of education. (Students will be examined in the principles of education, psychology and health education, the English educational system and in one of the following: further educational psychology, history of education, comparative education and administration).

B. The study of the English language with special attention to selection and grading for teaching purposes. The theory and practice of language teaching. Phonetics.

C. Practical teaching in North Wales and Spain, which involves residence away from London for a total of 2 months.

Entrance qualifications

The course is open only to graduates of British and other approved universities who intend to teach English overseas. It provides initial training as a teacher.

Fees	£75 plus £12 examination fee. Additional expenditure on teaching practice amounts to £60.
Number of places 1964/65	20.
Overseas affiliations	All Commonwealth countries, Sudan, Greece.

Applications to Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study	Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	Bruce Pattison. Professor of Education. A. V. P. Elliott. Senior Lecturer. G. L. Barnard. Lecturer (seconded to Tanganyika). G. Broughton. Lecturer. T. Stock. Temporary Lecturer. J. Barnett. Temporary Lecturer.
Content of course	A. The study of the English language with special attention to selection and grading for teaching purposes. B. The theory and practice of teaching language and literature. C. Practice in the interpretation of literature and various kinds of written English. D. Training in phonetics and in spoken English. E. Practical teaching in North Wales which involves residence away from London for a total of 2 months.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must be qualified and experienced teachers. The course does not provide initial training as a teacher, but is intended to help staff teacher-training institutions.

Fees	£75 plus £5 examination fee. Additional expenditure on teaching practice amounts to £60.
Number of places 1964/65	30.
General	Research is being undertaken on the role of English in various social contexts, the analysis of features of different styles of contemporary English, the problems of specific groups of learners and teaching materials and texts. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.). The Diploma is normally required as part of the qualification for proceeding to M.A. in Education in the field of English as a Foreign Language. Applications to Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1 before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education
(Department of Education in Tropical Areas)

Course of study	Postgraduate Certificate in Education, or Associate-ship of the Institute of Education.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	Staff of the Department of Education in Tropical Areas together with assistance of Professor Bruce Pattison (Head of Language Division) and Mrs. Helen Coppen (Head of Teaching Aids Department). John Wilson. Supervisor.
Content of course	A. Postgraduate Certificate in Education. Students for this course pursue studies leading to an examination in the following subjects: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Philosophy of education. 2. English educational system. 3. Educational psychology and health education. 4. Principles and methods of teaching.

5. The development of education in tropical areas.
6. Practical training in teaching.

Under 4. Principles and methods of teaching, special attention will be paid to the teaching of English and subject teaching through English at the point of transition from the mother tongue or local lingua franca to English as the medium of instruction.

B. Associateship students will carry out comparative studies of some aspect of subject teaching in English as the medium of instruction.

Special attention will be given to the problems of primary teacher training.

Entrance qualifications

1. Postgraduate Certificate in Education. Candidates must be graduates of a British university or of an approved university overseas and be suitably recommended by some responsible educational authority.

2. Associateship. Candidates for this course must

(1) normally have had at least five years' experience in approved educational work overseas;

(2) be qualified to undertake advanced studies in education.

Fees

£75. Examination fee: Postgraduate Certificate £12, Associateship £5. Visits and field studies approximately £50.

Number of places
1964/65

12.

Overseas affiliations

Caribbean, Africa, Asia, Pacific Islands.

General

The course is intended for persons concerned with teaching where English is the medium of instruction, and special emphasis is placed on the work in the primary school and in teacher-training colleges. Emphasis is placed on the design and use of teaching materials.

Applications to The Registrar, University of London, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

Course of study	Diploma in the Teaching of English Overseas (D.T.E.O.).
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	P. G. Wingard. Course Director (Department of Education). R. G. Wigzell. Special Lecturer in Education (Department of Education). G. L. Brook. Professor of English Language (Department of English). R. F. Leslie. Senior Lecturer in English Language (Department of English). W. Haas. Professor of Comparative Philology (Department of General Linguistics). D. J. Allerton. Lecturer in General Linguistics (Department of General Linguistics). E. Carney. Lecturer in Phonetics (Department of Phonetics).
Content of course	A. General linguistics, including phonetics. B. Contemporary English. C. The teaching of English overseas. D. Additional optional courses: it may be possible for students to attend one or two courses, in fields of special interest to them, in the Faculty of Education, the Faculty of Arts or the Faculty of Economic and Social Studies.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates should be graduates or trained teachers or both, and some years' teaching experience will be an advantage. The course is open to both overseas and British students. In 1963-64 only experienced teachers will be accepted. In 1964-65 it may be possible also to provide initial training for graduates without teaching experience.
Fees	£68.
Number of places 1964/65	At least 15.
Overseas affiliations	Countries where English is used as a main medium of instruction in primary and/or secondary schools, chiefly Africa.

General In addition to the study of the teaching of English, the course will include work on problems arising in the use of English as a medium of education and communication where it is not the first language. The course is designed for students who occupy or will occupy responsible posts in the teaching of English overseas, particularly in teacher training. Research is encouraged. There are facilities for relevant higher degree studies.

Applications to The Secretary, Faculty of Education, University of Manchester, Manchester 13, preferably before 1st March for the following October.

WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language (Dip. T.E.F.L.).
Length of course	1 academic year: September—June.
Staff (1963)	D. F. Bratchell.	Head of Department.
	J. B. Wynn.	Director and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics.
	G. E. Thomas.	Senior Lecturer in Education.
	D. L. Davies.	Lecturer in English Literature.
	D. J. Young.	Lecturer in Linguistics.
	J. L. McCarthy.	Lecturer in English Literature.
	A. J. Kirkman.	Lecturer in English Language.
	K. A. Markham.	Lecturer in Audio-Visual Aids.
	Mrs. M. Glastonbury.	Assistant Lecturer in Education.
	G. M. Holmes.	Assistant Lecturer in English Language.
Content of course	A. General linguistics, the development of the English language, English grammar and usage, phonetics, English literature, applied linguistics, teaching basic skills, teaching English grammar, teaching vocabulary and composition, teaching literature, use of audio-visual aids, tutorial work.
	B. A 10,000-word dissertation.

Entrance qualifications	The course is designed for suitably qualified teachers from abroad. Intending candidates must have obtained a university degree or equivalent qualification, and should preferably have had at least three years' experience teaching English at secondary school level. In a few cases suitable non-graduate teachers can be admitted.
Fees	£65.
Number of places 1964/65	30.
Overseas affiliations	The majority of the teachers at present are from the Middle East and the Far East, but the course is designed for foreign teachers of any nationality.
General	For both this course and the Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies for Foreign Students (q.v.) much audio-visual equipment will be made available during the next few years. There are plans for additional courses for teachers of English as a foreign language, including a Postgraduate Diploma in Linguistics. Applications to The Academic Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.

MORAY HOUSE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, EDINBURGH

Course of study	Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Second Language.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	E. Hilton. Head of Department. J. McIntosh. T. P. Lightbody. J. B. Pride.
Content of course	The course has five main aspects: (a) Language studies—the interaction of the mother tongue and English in the learning situation. (b) The psychology of language learning. (c) Methods of teaching related to the fundamental principles revealed by studies under (a) and (b). (d) A course in English literature, with emphasis on the language used. (e) Individual attention to the students' own spoken and written English. (f) Teaching aids. (g) Appropriate aspects of education.

The methods used throughout are a combination of lecture, tutorial and practical work. There are 2 periods of observation in Scottish schools.

Entrance qualifications

Preferably G.C.E. "A" level or above. Not less than good G.C.E. "O" level.

Fees

£200.

Number of places
1964/65

About 60.

Overseas affiliations

Students are drawn from many different parts of the Commonwealth.

General

The course is directed towards students who will occupy responsible posts, e.g. training college staff, advisers, pivotal teachers, etc. A fully equipped language laboratory for 16 students is available.

Applications to The Principal, Moray House College of Education, Holyrood Road, Edinburgh 8, before 1st March for the following October.

II. LINGUISTICS AND PHONETICS

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF NORTH WALES, BANGOR

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in Linguistics.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	F. R. Palmer.	Professor of Linguistics.
	K. A. Owen.	Lecturer.
	A. R. Thomas.	Lecturer.
	P. H. Matthews.	Lecturer.
	R. W. P. Brasington.	Assistant Lecturer.
	P. F. R. Barnes.	Assistant Lecturer.
	D. Crystal.	Assistant Lecturer.
Content of course	A. The general course in linguistics will have the following main topics: phonetics and phonology, grammar, linguistic theory, the linguistic structure of English.
	B. Either (i) a more detailed study of one of the main topics covered in A, or (ii) an approved special subject, e.g. dialectology, semantics, lexicography, English as a second or foreign language. The latter can only be taken as a special subject by candidates who are qualified or experienced teachers.
	C. A dissertation on an approved subject.
Entrance qualifications	A degree of the University of Wales or of another approved university. The course is open to British and overseas graduates.
Fees	£60. Amalgamation fee £6.6.0.
General	All overseas students are required to undertake some investigation into their own language. British students may be given the opportunity to co-operate with them. The Department is also engaged in a dialect survey of North Wales. The study of linguistics, together with phonetics and the structure of English, forms an integral part of both this course and the Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language (q.v.). The regulations are framed to make it possible for students to have a wide choice of subjects for more detailed study. If necessary, co-operation with other departments may be arranged.

The Department has a phonetics laboratory. A language laboratory will be installed during 1963. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, University College of North Wales, Bangor, Caernarvonshire, before 1st July for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH, School of Applied Linguistics

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in Applied Linguistics (Dip. App. Ling.).
Content of course	1 or 2 academic years (the academic year is from October to June).
Staff (1963)	J. C. Catford. Director. 3 Lecturers. Some teaching is also given by members of other departments, particularly English Language and General Linguistics, and Phonetics.
Length of course	A. Basic lecture courses: general linguistics, general and English phonetics, general theory of language teaching, English phonetics and the teaching of pronunciation, psychology and language teaching, English grammar. B. Major optional courses: the methodics of language teaching, literature in the teaching of English as a second language, experiments and tests in language teaching. C. Minor optional courses: theory of translation, language and child development, language teaching in education. D. Candidates must attend all basic courses and one out of each of the groups of options. In addition to passing a written examination in June, all candidates must write a dissertation, embodying results of a restricted piece of research.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must be university graduates who have had at least 3 years' experience in the teaching of English overseas or, exceptionally, in the teaching of other languages. In practice, most of the students are senior people with a great deal more than 3 years' experience.

Fees

£75. University composite fee £6.

Number of places 1964/65

25.

General

Teaching practice is not formally included in the course. Audio-visual techniques are demonstrated and students work in a small-scale language laboratory. The course is of a distinctly academic postgraduate type and the aim of the School is to produce a cadre of specialists in the theory and practice of language teaching.

Research interests include the development of language aptitude and achievement tests, programmed language teaching, English grammar, and translation theory. There are facilities for taking the degree of Ph.D.

Applications to The Secretary, School of Applied Linguistics, The University, Edinburgh 8, before 1st May for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH, Phonetics Department

Course of study

Postgraduate Diploma in Phonetics.

Length of course

Normally 2 academic years. Candidates with previous phonetic training equivalent to the Edinburgh University Ordinary Course in Phonetics may be allowed to take the Diploma in 1 year.

Staff (1963)

D. Abercrombie.	Reader, Head of Department.
K. Albrow.	Lecturer.
Lindsay Criper.	Lecturer.
L. A. Iles.	Lecturer.
W. E. Jones.	Lecturer.

Mrs. E. T. Uldall.	Lecturer.
R. Beresford.	Assistant Lecturer.
J. Kelly.	Assistant Lecturer.
K. Kohler.	Assistant Lecturer.

Content of course Phonetic and phonological theory, instrumental phonetics, acoustic phonetics, practical ear-training with informants, general phonetic performance and performance in different languages.
The course will consist of lectures, tutorials, practical classes, laboratory work and seminars.

Entrance qualifications Candidates must be graduates of Edinburgh or of another approved university, or possess qualifications approved by the Faculty of Arts.

Fees £60.

Applications to the Matriculation Office, Old College, The University, Edinburgh 8.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, University College

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English Linguistic Studies.

Length of course Normally 2 academic years (only one of which must necessarily be spent in London).

Staff (1963)

Randolph Quirk.	Professor of English Language.
A. C. Gimson.	Reader in Phonetics.
J. D. O'Connor.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
M. A. K. Halliday.	Director of Communication Research Centre.
G. N. Leech.	Lecturer in English.

Content of course A. Linguistic theory, modern English phonetics and phonology, modern English usage and grammatical structure.

B. Dissertation on an approved subject.

The course will consist of lectures, seminars and tutorials.

Entrance
qualifications

Candidates must hold an Honours degree in English or in a comparable linguistic discipline, or (in the case of candidates from overseas) have qualifications of equivalent standard.

Fees

First session £62, second session (as a full-time student) £60. Diploma examination £10.

Number of places
1964/65

8.

Applications to The Registrar, University College London, Gower Street, London, W.C.1, before June for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON,

University College or

School of Oriental and African Studies

Course of study

Academic Postgraduate Diploma in Phonetics.

Length of course

Normally 2 academic years: October—June.

Staff (1963)

University College:

D. B. Fry. Professor of Experimental Phonetics.
A. C. Gimson. Reader in Phonetics.
G. F. Arnold. Lecturer.
Marguerite Chapallaz. Lecturer.
A. J. Fourcin. Lecturer.
Frieda Goldman-Eisler. Lecturer.
J. D. O'Connor. Lecturer.
J. T. Pring. Lecturer.
Olive M. Tooley. Lecturer.
D. C. Bennett. Assistant Lecturer.
J. C. Wells. Assistant Lecturer.

School of Oriental and African Studies:

N. C. Scott. Professor of Phonetics.
C. E. Bazell. Professor of General Linguistics.
Eugenie J. A. Henderson. Reader in Phonetics.
T. F. Mitchell. Reader in Linguistics.
R. H. Robins. Reader in General Linguistics.
J. Carnochan. Senior Lecturer in Phonetics.

Eileen M. Whitley.	Senior Lecturer in Phonetics.
C. J. E. Ball.	Lecturer in Comparative Linguistics.
J. E. Buse.	Lecturer in Linguistics.
A. E. Sharp.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
R. K. Sprigg.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
Natalie Waterson.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
J. T. Wright.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
Eleanor M. Higginbottom.	Assistant Lecturer in Phonetics.

Content of course

- A. General phonetic theory.
- B. The phonetics of English.
- C. The phonetics of an approved foreign language.
- D. Special subject—one of the following: teaching the pronunciation and intonation of English and the selected foreign language; application of phonetics to the historical study of (a) English or (b) an approved foreign language; speech therapy; experimental phonetics.
- E. Practical work in phonetics.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must be either (a) graduates of this or another approved university whose undergraduate courses have in the opinion of the University included a suitable preliminary training, or (b) have satisfied the University that their previous education and experience qualify them to rank on the same level as graduates approved under (a) for this purpose.

Fees

U.C.L. £62; S.O.A.S. £55 per annum. Registration fee £3.3.0. Examination fee £15.

General

There are facilities for taking higher degrees (M.A. General Linguistics and Phonetics; Ph.D.). A Certificate of Proficiency in English Phonetics for Foreign Students can also be taken.

Applications to The Registrar, University College London, Gower Street, London, W.C.1, or The Registrar, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1, before 31st May for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, School of Oriental and African Studies

Candidates are also entered from University of London, University College

Course of study	Academic Postgraduate Diploma in General Linguistics.
Length of course	2 academic years: October—June.
Staff (1963)	N. C. Scott. Professor of Phonetics. C. E. Bazell. Professor of General Linguistics. Eugenie J. A. Henderson. Reader in Phonetics. T. F. Mitchell. Reader in Linguistics. R. H. Robins. Reader in General Linguistics. J. Carnochan. Senior Lecturer in Phonetics. Eileen M. Whitley. Senior Lecturer in Phonetics. C. J. E. Ball. Lecturer in Comparative Linguistics. J. E. Buse. Lecturer in Linguistics. A. E. Sharp. Lecturer in Phonetics. R. K. Sprigg. Lecturer in Phonetics. Natalie Waterson. Lecturer in Phonetics. J. T. Wright. Lecturer in Phonetics. Eleanor M. Higginbottom. Assistant Lecturer in Phonetics.
Content of course	A. General principles of linguistic science. B. Phonetic, phonological, grammatical and lexical theory. C. The methods of descriptive linguistics and their application to English and other language material. D. Two of the following special topics: dialectology; historical linguistics; history of linguistics; semantics. E. Practical work.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must be either (a) graduates of this or another approved University whose undergraduate courses have in the opinion of the University included a suitable preliminary training, or (b) have satisfied the University that their previous education and experience qualify them to rank on the same level as graduates approved under (a) for this purpose.
Fees	£55 per annum. University registration fee £3.3.0. Examination fee £15.

General A phonetics laboratory is available. There are facilities for taking higher degrees (M.A. General Linguistics and Phonetics; Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1, before 31st May for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

Course of study	Diploma in General Linguistics.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	W. Haas. Professor of Comparative Philology. E. Carney. Lecturer in Phonetics. D. J. Allerton. Lecturer in General Linguistics. Subjects other than General Linguistics are studied in the appropriate Faculty and Department.
Content of course	A. General phonetics. B. Methods of linguistic analysis. C. Principles of comparative linguistics. D. Theory of meaning. E.*A descriptive or historical study of an approved language or group of languages. F.One of the following: Literary criticism, comparative literary studies, logic, general psychology, educational psychology, introduction to statistics and information-theory, social anthropology, audiology, any other subject approved by the Board of the Faculty. ( The choice of language or group of languages under E and the choice of subject under F will be made in the light of a candidate's previous qualifications.)
Entrance qualifications	Candidates for the Diploma must be graduates of this or another approved university, or have other appropriate qualifications.

Fees £68.
Number of places 15.
1964/65

General

This course is designed to provide specialist training for professional linguistic work. It is intended for the prospective teacher of language and literature as well as those qualified in other fields—such as philosophy, psychology, sociology, speech therapy, mission work, or the technology of communication—who wish to acquire a knowledge of general linguistic principles and techniques. A phonetics laboratory is available. The Department is responsible for a substantial part of the course leading to the Diploma in the Teaching of English Overseas (q.v.).

Facilities are available for higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to Professor W. Haas, Department of General Linguistics, The University, Manchester 13.

III. ENGLISH STUDIES

UNIVERSITY OF EXETER

Course of study	Testamur in English Language and Literature for Overseas Students.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	K. W. Salter.	Lecturer in English and Tutor to Overseas Students.
	R. N. Parkinson.	Lecturer in English.
	Mrs. V. Lloyd.	Lecturer in Phonetics.
Content of course	Course A. Development of English poetry from 1590 to present times, development of English prose, study of Shakespeare's plays, the English novel, the study and practice of English phonetics. Course B. Development of English drama with special reference to Shakespeare and 17th century dramatists, modern English literature from 1880 to present times, development of English poetry from 1590 to the 19th century, the 19th century novel, modern critical theory and practice.
Entrance qualifications	Either the Certificate of Proficiency in English of the Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate or a General Certificate of Education issued by an Examining Board in the United Kingdom which includes an Ordinary Level pass in English language or a qualification which would entitle the student to be matriculated in a university in his own country. Course A is suitable for students of English from foreign universities or for intending teachers of English. Course B is recommended for students from universities in the United States. Students may follow both courses.
Fees	£60.
Number of places 1964/65	Course A.	20.
	Course B.	15.

Applications to The Academic Registrar, University of Exeter, Exeter, Devon, before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	C. L. Barber. Senior Lecturer in English.
Content of course	A. English phonetics, contemporary English usage, English literature (including a special author and a special period), the teaching of English. Within the framework of the regulations a broad choice is available as between linguistics and the teaching of English as a second language, or literature. B. Dissertation: an exercise in original research on an approved subject.
Entrance qualifications	The course is generally taken by overseas candidates, who must be graduates or possess equivalent qualifications. The type of student sought is the university or training-college lecturer wishing to acquire additional specialist qualifications.
Fees	£100.
Number of places 1964/65	25.
General	The syllabus of this course and that of the Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language (q.v.) are designed to overlap at many points. Facilities are available for taking a higher degree (M.A.). Applications to The Secretary, Department of English Literature, The University, Leeds 2, preferably before 31st March for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies for Overseas Students: Language and Literature.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.

Staff (1963) T. S. B. Hawthorne. Lecturer responsible for the course.
W. Nash. Lecturer in Linguistics.
Other members of the academic staff contribute to the course.

Content of course A. English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960: the novel or poetry and drama.
B. The structure of contemporary English.
C. Shakespeare, the metaphysical poets and Milton.
D. The language of Shakespeare and Milton.
E. One of the following: English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960: the novel (if not chosen under A); English Literature, life and thought from 1880-1960: poetry and drama (if not chosen under A); the history of the English language; the present-day English educational system and its recent history; British political institutions
F. A dissertation on an approved topic.
Instruction in phonetics is also provided.
There will be an oral test as well as a written examination.

Entrance qualifications Candidates should normally be graduates of recognised overseas universities or should possess equivalent qualifications.

Fees £75.

Number of places 1964/65 24.

General A language laboratory and other audio-visual aids are available.

Applications to The Registrar, The University, University Park, Nottingham, before 31st May for the following October.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

Course of study	Advanced Certificate in English Studies for Overseas Students: Language and Literature.
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June.
Staff (1963)	T. S. B. Hawthorne.	Lecturer responsible for the course.
	W. Nash.	Lecturer in Linguistics.
	Other members of the academic staff contribute to the course.
Content of course	A. English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960: the novel. B. English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960: poetry and drama. C. The structure of contemporary English. D. Shakespeare, the metaphysical poets and Milton. E. The language of Shakespeare and Milton. F. One of the following: the history of the English language; the present-day English educational system and its recent history; British political institutions. G. An oral test. Instruction in phonetics is also provided.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates should normally be graduates or undergraduates of recognised overseas universities, or members or ex-members of other recognised institutions of higher education.
Fees	£75.
Number of places 1964/65	24.
General	A language laboratory and other audio-visual aids are available.

Applications to The Registrar, The University, University Park, Nottingham, before 31st May for the following October.

WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies for Foreign Students (Dip. Eng. Stud.).
Length of course	1 academic year: September—June.
Staff (1963)	<table><tr><td>D. F. Bratchell.</td><td>Head of Department.</td></tr><tr><td>J. B. Wynn.</td><td>Director and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics.</td></tr><tr><td>G. E. Thomas.</td><td>Senior Lecturer in Education.</td></tr><tr><td>D. L. Davies.</td><td>Lecturer in English Literature.</td></tr><tr><td>D. J. Young.</td><td>Lecturer in Linguistics.</td></tr><tr><td>J. L. McCarthy.</td><td>Lecturer in English Literature.</td></tr><tr><td>A. J. Kirkman.</td><td>Lecturer in English Language.</td></tr><tr><td>Mrs. M. Glastonbury.</td><td>Assistant Lecturer in Education.</td></tr><tr><td>G. M. Holmes.</td><td>Assistant Lecturer in English Language.</td></tr></table>	D. F. Bratchell.	Head of Department.	J. B. Wynn.	Director and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics.	G. E. Thomas.	Senior Lecturer in Education.	D. L. Davies.	Lecturer in English Literature.	D. J. Young.	Lecturer in Linguistics.	J. L. McCarthy.	Lecturer in English Literature.	A. J. Kirkman.	Lecturer in English Language.	Mrs. M. Glastonbury.	Assistant Lecturer in Education.	G. M. Holmes.	Assistant Lecturer in English Language.
D. F. Bratchell.	Head of Department.
J. B. Wynn.	Director and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics.
G. E. Thomas.	Senior Lecturer in Education.
D. L. Davies.	Lecturer in English Literature.
D. J. Young.	Lecturer in Linguistics.
J. L. McCarthy.	Lecturer in English Literature.
A. J. Kirkman.	Lecturer in English Language.
Mrs. M. Glastonbury.	Assistant Lecturer in Education.
G. M. Holmes.	Assistant Lecturer in English Language.
Content of course	A. Essay writing and stylistics, phonetics, contemporary English—structure and usage, vocabulary and idiom, English literature, criticism and appreciation. B. Special Subjects. Two of the following must be studied: English literature 1600-1789 or 1789-1900, British life and thought, communication, scientific writing, general linguistics, Shakespeare. C. There will be tutorials for practical work in pronunciation, comprehension and exposition. D. Students may also take a Certificate in Oral Mastery.
Entrance qualifications	The course is open to overseas students holding a university degree or equivalent qualification. In a few cases suitable non-graduates can be admitted.
Fees	£65.
Number of places 1964/65	30.
General	This is a new course starting in September 1963. For both this course and the Postgraduate Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language (q.v.) much audio-visual equipment will be made available during the next few years.

Applications to The Academic Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.

WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Course of study	Advanced Certificate in English Studies for Foreign Students.
Length of course	1 academic year: September—June.
Staff (1963)	D. F. Bratchell. Head of Department. J. B. Wynn. Director and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics. G. E. Thomas. Senior Lecturer in Education. D. L. Davies. Lecturer in English Literature. D. J. Young. Lecturer in Linguistics. J. L. McCarthy. Lecturer in English Literature. A. J. Kirkman. Lecturer in English Language. Mrs. M. Glastonbury. Assistant Lecturer in Education. G. M. Holmes. Assistant Lecturer in English Language.
Content of course	A. Phonetics, writing of English, idiom and usage, grammatical structure of English, reading of English, comprehension and précis, translation from and into English, modern English literature, vocabulary study, British life and thought, commercial and scientific English, discussion and conversation. B. There will be tutorial groups three times a week, and regular periods of instruction in the language laboratory. C. Students may also take a Certificate in Oral Mastery.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must have obtained a pass in English in a recognised school-leaving examination (e.g. Baccalauréat or Abitur) or equivalent examination.

Fees £65.

Number of places
1964/65 30.

General This is an intensive course in English language and literature of university standard, and is designed to meet the needs of non-graduate students, including teachers, anxious to improve their command of English in the shortest possible time.

Applications to The Academic Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.