

The Space Between: Connecting Microhistory and Global History

Warwick in Venice, Palazzo Pesaro-Papafava

26-28 February 2016

Warwick-in-Venice will be the site for a closed workshop on microhistory and global history, jointly organised by Maxine Berg (Warwick) and John-Paul Ghobrial (Oxford). The workshop will provide a forum for reflecting on key questions of scale and distance in historical writing. We seek to do so by bringing microhistory and global history in conversation with each other, at a time when both approaches have captured the imagination of scholars across a wide variety of subjects.
