

Research through Drama to make Applied Theatre : Passing On.

'Death a necessary end will come when it will come'. Shakespeare

We don't want to know when but we should care how. The CAPITAL Fellowship formalised developing practice into research through drama in partnership with the Institute of Health. This was fuelled and inspired by testimony taken from a three year research study into End of Life Care by the Institute of Health and the Medical School. With a life sized puppet, a playwright, and actors we challenged ourselves with Little Angel Theatre to discover how to make a play about the unplayable.
