

This chapter should not be used to present a list of activities that time did not permit you to execute. The purpose of this chapter is to enable the field of research to progress, so that any new research project can build on the ideas and concepts of what has gone before. Having completed the research and knowing what you now know, if you had the time and resources to start a new research project in the same area, what would you do? What further questions have been raised as a result of your research and what are the next steps? You may not necessarily be the one to do this research, but by identifying what direction the research could take, you may enable others to do so.
