

ACADEMIC COURSES IN GREAT BRITAIN

RELEVANT TO THE TEACHING OF ENGLISH
AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

1966-67

The British Council
English-Teaching Information Centre
State House, High Holborn,
London, W.C.1
1966

NOTE

This publication provides a statement of courses available during the 1966/67 Session and should also be a relevant guide to 1967/68. The information it contains has been supplied by directors of courses and is published on their behalf by ETIC. For more detailed information about each course application should be made to the institution concerned.

Previous editions of this work were published as ETIC Occasional Papers Nos. 2 (1963/4), 4 (1964/5), and 5 (1965/6).

CONTENTS

	Page
I TEACHING OF ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE
University College of North Wales, Bangor	4
University of Leeds	5
University of London	7
University of Manchester	11
Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff	12
Moray House College of Education, Edinburgh	13
II TEACHING IN ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE
University of London	15
Moray House College of Education, Edinburgh	16
III LINGUISTICS AND PHONETICS
University College of North Wales, Bangor	17
University of Edinburgh	18
University of Essex	20
University of Leeds	22
University of London	23
University of Manchester	27
University of Reading	28
University of York	29
Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff	30
IV ENGLISH STUDIES
University of Edinburgh	31
University of Exeter	34
University of Leeds	35
University of Nottingham	36
Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff	38

I. TEACHING OF ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE

1. UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF NORTH WALES, BANGOR

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

A. E. Sharp	Professor of Linguistics
J. J. Christie	Lecturer
K. A. Owen	Lecturer
A. R. Thomas	Lecturer
L. van Buuren	Lecturer
R. J. Wigzell	Lecturer
R. O. Jones	Assistant Lecturer

Content of course

A. 1. Phonetics and especially the phonetics of English; 2. general linguistics; 3. the structure of English; 4. principles of second language teaching.
B. A dissertation on an approved subject.

Entrance qualifications A degree of the University of Wales or of another approved university. The course is intended for experienced or qualified teachers proposing to teach English overseas.

Fees £60. Amalgamation fee £7.

General All overseas students are required to undertake some investigation into their own language. The study of linguistics, together with phonetics and the structure of English, forms an integral part of both this course and the Postgraduate Diploma in Linguistics (see No. 16). The Department of Linguistics has a phonetics laboratory and a language laboratory. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, University College of North Wales, Bangor, Caernarvonshire, before 1st July for the following October.

2. UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF NORTH WALES, BANGOR

Course of study Diploma in Education with special reference to the teaching of English as a Second Language

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

S. F. Whitaker Tutor in charge
Staffs of the Departments of Education and Linguistics

Content of course

A. Education: principles of education, educational psychology, principles of second language teaching, historical and sociological context of modern education, methods of teaching English as a second language and of teaching one other school subject.

B. Linguistics: phonetics (especially the phonetics of English), general linguistics, structure of English.

C. Practical teaching: in appropriate schools in Britain and abroad.

D. Dissertation on approved subjects in (1) Education (2) Applied Linguistics.

Entrance qualifications

A degree of the University of Wales or of another approved university.

Fees

£60. Amalgamation fee £6. 6. 0.

General

This course in addition to giving instruction in English as a second language provides initial training as a teacher.

Applications to the Department of Education, University College of North Wales, Bangor, Caernarvonshire, before 31st March for the following October.

3. UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Course of study

Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language (Course B)

Length of course

1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

	English Language and General Linguistics
T. F. Mitchell	Professor of English Language and General Linguistics
J. W. Spencer	Senior Lecturer
D. Barber
A. P. Cowie
T. L. Davidson
J. D. Fox
F. Liefink
J. B. Pride
	Education
William Walsh	Professor of Education
A. Laing	Senior Lecturer
D. H. Harding
G. M. Kennelfield
Miss Sheila M. Rooke

Content of course (1) The theory and practice of education, educational sociology, educational psychology;
 (2) Teaching practice, part of which is normally undertaken abroad;
 (3) Introductory courses in general linguistics, English grammar and phonology, contemporary English literature;
 (4) Seminar in English language teaching materials and applications of linguistics to language teaching;
 (5) A dissertation comprising a short piece of research on an approved subject.

Entrance qualifications The course is intended for young British graduates intending to teach English abroad. Preference is likely to be given to those with a degree in English and/or modern languages.

Fees £100.

Number of places 1967/68 20—25.

Applications to The Registrar, University of Leeds, Leeds 2, before 31st March for the following October.

4. UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS, Institute of Education

Course of study The Teaching of English as a Second Language

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) D. G. Burns Supervisor of Commonwealth Courses
 H. J. S. Taylor Tutor
 Lectures are also given by specialists from the staffs of the Institute of Education and the School of English

Content of course A. Language: modern linguistics and phonetics, first and second language learning, contemporary English usage in speech and writing.
 B. The teaching of English as a second language: modern methods in primary and secondary schools, the organisation of material, the evaluation of textbooks, the use of audio-visual aids and the language laboratory, practical experience and teaching of non-English-speaking pupils.
 C. English literature: the teaching of English literature, the appreciation of selected authors.

D. The study of education: the English educational system, visits to a wide range of educational institutions, an appraisal of methods and materials used in language teaching.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must have a teaching qualification recognised by their territorial Ministry or Department of Education, and must normally have had not less than five years' teaching experience (three years' in the case of graduates). The course is designed for overseas teachers and educationists. Preference will be given to candidates from countries where English is the second language.

Fees

This course is normally confined to a group of students specially nominated by the British Council. It may exceptionally be possible to admit students at a fee of £90 a head.

Number of places 1967/68

At least 12, possibly more.

General

The award of a Diploma or Certificate will be based on assessments of a student's work made from prescribed essays, his practical work, the results of written examinations, and his general progress during the course. The course is intended for qualified and experienced teachers and does not provide initial training as a teacher. A 12-booth language laboratory is installed.

Applications to The Secretary, University of Leeds Institute of Education, The University, Leeds 2, before 28th February for the following October.

5. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study Postgraduate Certificate in Education

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) Bruce Pattison Professor of Education
 A. V. P. Elliott Senior Lecturer
 A. Baird Lecturer
 G. Broughton Lecturer
 C. P. Hill Lecturer
 A. Pincas Lecturer

Content of course

A. The study of education. Students will be examined in the principles of education, psychology and health education, the English educational system and in one of the following: further educational psychology, history of education, comparative education and administration, the development of education in tropical areas, sociology of education, advanced philosophy of education.

B. The study of the English language with special attention to selection and grading for teaching purposes. The theory and practice of language teaching. Phonetics.

C. Practical teaching, which involves residence away from London for a total of 7 weeks, including one month abroad.

Entrance qualifications

The course is open only to graduates of British and other approved universities who intend to teach English overseas. It provides initial training as a teacher.

Fees

£75 plus £12 examination fee. Additional expenditure on teaching practice amounts to £60.

Number of places 1967/68

25.

Overseas affiliations

All Commonwealth countries and a number of other countries.

Applications to The Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

6. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study

Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language

Length of course

1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

Bruce Pattison Professor of Education
A. V. P. Elliott Senior Lecturer
A. Baird Lecturer
G. Broughton Lecturer
C. P. Hill Lecturer
A. Pincas Lecturer

Content of course

A. The study of the English language with special attention to selection and grading for teaching purposes.
B. The theory and practice of teaching language and literature.
C. Practice in the interpretation of literature and various kinds of written English.
D. Training in phonetics and in spoken English.

E. Practical teaching, which involves residence away from London for a total of 7 weeks, including one month abroad.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must be qualified and experienced teachers. The course does not provide initial training as a teacher, but is intended to help staff teacher-training institutions.

Fees

£75 plus £5 examination fee. Additional expenditure on teaching practice amounts to £60.

Number of places 1967/68

30

General

Research is being undertaken on the role of English in various social contexts, the analysis of features of different styles of contemporary English, the problems of specific groups of learners and teaching materials and texts.

Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.Phil. and Ph.D.). The Diploma is normally required as part of the qualification for proceeding to M.Phil. in Education in the field of English as a Foreign Language.

Applications to The Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

7. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study

Master's degree in Education

Length of course

1 calendar year: October—September

Entrance qualifications

Candidates wishing to study the teaching of English as a foreign language must have obtained the Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language and have passed in one subject of the Academic Diploma in Education, or must possess equivalent qualifications.

Fees

£75 plus £8 registration and £25 examination fees.

Applications to The Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

8. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study	M.Phil. in English and Education
Length of course	2 academic years: October—June Several Schools of the University co-operate in the course.
Content of course	Students work under tutorial supervision. The examination consists of (a) a dissertation, not normally exceeding 25,000 words, on a literary or linguistic subject; (b) a written paper on the present-day English language; (c) two written papers on the teaching of English as a second or later language with special reference to a particular area or territory; (d) an approved piece of editorial work; (e) an oral examination.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must hold a First or Second Class Honours degree in English of the University of London or a qualification adjudged equivalent.
Fees	£75 plus £8 registration and £25 examination fees.
General	The course is intended as preparation for teaching English in universities in non-English-speaking countries. Applications to The Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

9. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

Course of study	Ph.D. in Education
Length of course	2 academic years: October—June
Content of course	Students work under tutorial supervision. The examination consists of a thesis supplemented by an oral examination.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must have obtained the M.A. or M.Phil. in Education or an equivalent qualification.
Fees	£75 plus £8 registration and £30 examination fees. Applications to The Assistant Adviser to Overseas Students, Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

10. UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

Course of study	Diploma in the Teaching of English Overseas (D.T.E.O.)
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June
Staff (1966)	Department of Education P. G. Wingard Senior Lecturer in the Teaching of English Overseas and Course Director G. W. Abbott Lecturer in the Teaching of English Overseas J. Chandley Special Lecturer in Education School of Education A. L. Jones Tutor to Commonwealth Teacher-Trainers Department of English J. R. D. Milroy Lecturer in English Language J. M. Hughes Assistant Lecturer in English Language Department of General Linguistics W. Haas Professor of General Linguistics D. J. Allerton Lecturer in General Linguistics E. Carney Lecturer in Phonetics H. Peter Lecturer in General Linguistics
Content of course	A. General linguistics, including phonetics. B. Contemporary English. C. The teaching of English overseas. D. Students who are not trained teachers are required to follow courses in the theory and practice of education.
Entrance qualifications	The course is open to both overseas and British students. Applicants should be graduates or trained teachers or both. Overseas applicants should normally have had at least two year's teaching experience. British graduates may obtain initial training for teaching through the course, but preference will usually be given to applicants with previous experience of teaching English as a second language.
Fees	£68.
Number of places 1967/68	Approximately 20.
Overseas affiliations	Countries where English is used as a main medium of instruction in primary and/or secondary schools.
General	In addition to the study of the teaching of English, the course will include work on problems arising in the use of English as a medium of education and communication where it is not the first language. The course is designed for students who occupy or will occupy responsible posts in the teaching of English overseas, particularly in teacher training. Research is encouraged. There are facilities for relevant higher degree studies.

Applications to The Secretary, Faculty of Education, University of Manchester, Manchester 13, preferably before 1st March for the following October.

11. WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Foreign Language (Dip. T.E.F.L.)
Length of course	1 academic year: September—June
Staff (1966)	D. F. Bratchell	Head of Department of English and Liberal Studies
	J. B. Wynn	Director of Studies and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics
	G. E. Thomas	Lecturer in Education
	D. L. Davies	Lecturer in Education
	D. J. Young	Lecturer in Linguistics
	J. L. McCarthy	Lecturer in Literature
	R. J. Thornton	Lecturer in English Language
	G. Hilyer	Assistant Lecturer in Linguistics
	Mrs M. Glastonbury	Part-time Lecturer in English and Education
Content of course	A. Theory and practice of linguistics, including general linguistics, general and applied phonetics, structure of contemporary English, applied linguistics. B. Methods and materials in the teaching of English as a foreign language, including general principles, teaching basic skills, teaching grammar, vocabulary and composition, teaching literature, use of audio-visual aids. C. A special topic in either literature or education. D. A research exercise of not more than 7,000 words. E. Teaching practice in schools and colleges of Wales. F. A practical teaching test.
Entrance qualifications	The course is open to teachers and teacher-trainers from Britain and overseas. Candidates should have obtained a university degree or equivalent qualification, and should be qualified teachers or have had not less than three years' teaching experience. Suitable non-graduates may also be considered.
Fees	£67. 7. 0.

Number of places
1967/68 30.

Overseas affiliations The majority of overseas students are from the Middle East, Far East and Latin America, though the course is suitable for students of any nationality.

General A special feature of the course is the use of the language laboratory both for tutorial work in language and for training teachers in language-laboratory techniques. Research in special methods of teaching English is encouraged. The Department has research in progress on the textbook, preparation of audio-lingual materials, communication, and structural analysis.

Applications to The Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.

12. MORAY HOUSE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, EDINBURGH

Course of study	Diploma in the Teaching of English as a Second Language
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June
Staff (1966)	E. Hilton	Head of Department
	T. P. Lightbody
	D. Carver
	K. A. Robertson
	M. J. Wallace
Content of course	The main aspects of the course are: (a) language studies, including varieties within English, the use of language in literature, a comparison of English with the mother-tongue, and the interaction between the mother-tongue and English on the learning situation; (b) the psychology of language learning; (c) the methodics of language teaching and the role of visual and oral aids in this; (d) individual attention to the student's written and spoken English; (e) appropriate aspects of education.
Entrance qualifications	The course is open to trained teachers who specialise in the teaching of English at secondary school or training college level, or in the inspection of English teaching.
Fees	£200.
Number of places 1967/68	About 30.

Overseas affiliations

Students are drawn from many parts of the Commonwealth. The great majority are holders of scholarships or other official awards.

Applications to The Principal, Moray House College of Education, Holyrood Road, Edinburgh 8, before 1st March for the following October.

13. MORAY HOUSE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, EDINBURGH

Course of study Certificate in the Teaching of English as a Second Language

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) E. Hilton Head of Department
T. P. Lightbody
K. Robertson
D. Carver
M. J. Wallace

Content of course The main aspects of the course are analogous to those of the Diploma course (see No. 12), but are directed specifically to the primary school situation. They are (a) language studies, with special reference to the role of second languages; (b) the methodics of language teaching in the primary school, including the introduction of English as a medium of instruction; (c) the development of the students own spoken and written English; (d) professional subjects, including education and psychology.

Entrance qualifications The course is open to trained teachers who are concerned with the problem of teaching English as a second language in the primary school.

Fees £200.

Number of places 1967/68 About 25.

Overseas affiliations Students are drawn from most parts of the Commonwealth and sometimes from outside. Almost all are holders of official awards.

Applications to The Principal, Moray House College of Education, Holyrood Road, Edinburgh 8, before 1st March for the following October.

II. TEACHING IN ENGLISH AS A SECOND LANGUAGE14. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, Institute of Education

(Department of Education in Tropical Areas)

Course of study Postgraduate Certificate in Education or the Associateship of the Institute of Education.

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June. Associateship candidates may be required to stay for a further period of one to three months to complete their written report on their special field of study.

Staff (1966)

L. J. Lewis	Professor of Education
J. Wilson	Senior Lecturer
Mrs D. I. Baggott	Lecturer
J. Cameron	Lecturer
W. A. Dodd	Lecturer
P. C. C. Evans	Lecturer
A. J. Loveridge	Lecturer
P. S. Tregear	Lecturer
J. M. Wilson	Lecturer

Content of course A. Postgraduate Certificate in Education. Students for this course pursue studies leading to an examination in the following subjects: 1. philosophy of education; 2. English educational system; 3. educational psychology and health education; 4. principles and methods of teaching; 5. the development of education in tropical areas; 6. practical training in teaching. Under 4, principles and methods of teaching, special attention will be paid to the teaching of English and subject teaching through English at the point of transition from the mother tongue or local lingua franca to English as the medium of instruction. B. Associateship students will carry out comparative studies of some aspect of subject teaching in English as the medium of instruction. Special attention will be given to the problems of primary teacher training.

Entrance qualifications 1. Postgraduate Certificate in Education. Candidates must be graduates of a British university or of an approved university overseas and be suitably recommended by some responsible educational authority. 2. Associateship. Candidates for this course must (1) normally have had at least five years' experience in approved educational work overseas; (2) be qualified to undertake advanced studies in education.

Fees £75. Examination fee: Postgraduate Certificate £12, Associateship £5. Visits and field studies approximately £50.

Number of places
1967/68 12.

Overseas affiliations Caribbean, Africa, Asia, Pacific Islands.

General The course is intended for persons concerned with teaching where English, not being the mother tongue, is the medium of instruction. Special attention is given to work in the primary school and in teacher-training colleges, and emphasis is placed on the design and use of teaching materials.

Applications to The Registrar, University of London Institute of Education, Malet Street, London, W.C.1, before 31st March for the following October.

15. MORAY HOUSE COLLEGE OF EDUCATION, EDINBURGH

Course of study Certificate in Tropical Education

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) E. Hilton Head of Department
T. P. Lightbody
D. Carver
K. A. Robertson
M. J. Wallace

Content of course The main aspects of the course are: (a) the teaching of English in the primary school overseas; (b) the improvement of the students' own written and spoken English; (c) a study of modern methods in the major primary school subjects; (d) professional studies, including Education and Psychology; (e) periods of observation in different types of primary schools.

Entrance qualifications The course is designed for trained primary-school head-teachers and potential head-teachers, in whose schools English is taught as a second language.

Fees £200.

Number of places
1967/68 About 20.

Overseas affiliations Students are drawn from many parts of the Commonwealth, and occasionally from outside. The majority are holders of official Scholarships or bursaries.

Applications to The Principal, Moray House College of Education, Holyrood Road, Edinburgh 8, before 1st March for the following October.

III. LINGUISTICS AND PHONETICS

16. UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF NORTH WALES, BANGOR

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in Linguistics

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) A. E. Sharp Professor of Linguistics
K. A. Owen Lecturer
J. J. Christie Lecturer
A. R. Thomas Lecturer
L. van Buuren Lecturer
R. J. Wigzell Lecturer
R. O. Jones Assistant Lecturer

Content of course A. 1. Phonetics and phonology; 2. grammar; 3. linguistic theory; 4. the linguistic structure of English.
B. An approved special subject.
C. A dissertation on an approved subject.

Entrance qualifications A degree of the University of Wales or of another approved university. The course is open to British and overseas graduates.

Fees £60. Amalgamation fee £7.

General All overseas students are required to undertake some investigation into their own language. British students may be given the opportunity to co-operate with them. The Department of Linguistics is also engaged in a dialect survey of North Wales and in a survey of cultured, spoken Welsh. The study of linguistics, together with phonetics and the structure of English, forms an integral part of both this course and the Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language (See No. 1). The regulations are framed to make it possible for students to have a choice of subjects for more detailed study. If necessary, co-operation with other departments may be arranged. The Department has a phonetics laboratory and a language laboratory. Facilities are available for taking higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, University College of North Wales, Bangor, Caernarvonshire, before 1st July for the following October.

17. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

Course of study	Diploma in General Linguistics
Length of course	1 or 2 academic years: October—June
Staff (1966)	John Lyons Professor R. E. Asher Senior Lecturer E. K. Brown Lecturer E. C. Fudge Lecturer M. S. Gropper Assistant Lecturer
Content of course	A. Linguistic theory; descriptive phonology; grammar; semantics. B. History of linguistics; comparative study of languages; dialectology; role of language in society; relationship between linguistics and neighbouring disciplines; computational linguistics; formal properties of mathematical models of language-structure. An oral test will be required.
Entrance qualifications	Students must be graduates of this or another approved university, or persons possessing qualifications approved by the Faculty of Arts. An Honours degree in a language (or languages) will normally be required.
Fees	£60.
Number of places 1967/68	12.
	Applications to the Office of the Faculty of Arts, David Hume Tower, George Square, Edinburgh 8, before 1st May for the following October.

18. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH, Department of Applied Linguistics

Courses of study	Postgraduate Diploma in Applied Linguistics (Dip. App. Ling.) M.Litt. in Applied Linguistics
Length of courses	Diploma course, normally one academic year: October to June M.Litt. course, two academic years
Staff (1966)	S. P. Corder Senior Lecturer, Head of Department C. Criper Lecturer D. J. Dakin Lecturer

A. Davies	Lecturer
Mrs E. Ingram	Lecturer
D. Macaulay	Lecturer
A. P. R. Howatt	Assistant Lecturer

Content of course

Diploma Course

- A. Lecture courses: general and descriptive linguistics; general English phonetics; applied linguistics; second language teaching; psychology and language teaching; psycholinguistics; English grammar; English literature abroad.
- B. Practical classes: language testing; grammatical analysis; language laboratory techniques; syllabus writing programmed instruction; stylistic analysis; teaching of reading and writing.
- C. Demonstration of teaching materials: film, TV, audio-visual courses, textbooks, etc.
- D. Candidates attend all lecture courses and practical classes. In addition to passing a written examination in June, all candidates must write a dissertation, embodying results of a restricted piece of research.

M.Litt. Course

Candidates in their first year attend the same classes as the Diploma candidates and sit a written examination. Having passed this successfully, they devote their second year of study to the writing of a dissertation on the results of which the degree is awarded.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates for the Diploma and M.Litt. courses must be university graduates with considerable experience of teaching languages, either foreign or mother tongue.

Fees

Diploma in Applied Linguistics £75. University composite fee £6.
M.Litt. in Applied Linguistics £75. University composite fee £6.

Number of places 1967/68

35 (Diploma Course).

General

Facilities are available for taking the Ph.D. degree in Applied Linguistics. The possession of a Diploma or M.Litt. degree is normally required as a qualification to proceed to this degree.

Applications to The Secretary, Department of Applied Linguistics, 14 Buccleuch Place, Edinburgh 8, before 1st May for the following October.

19. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH, Department of Phonetics

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in Phonetics
Length of course	Normally 2 academic years. Candidates with previous phonetic training equivalent to the Edinburgh University Ordinary Course in Phonetics may be allowed to take the Diploma in 1 year.
Staff (1966)	D. Abercrombie	Professor
	Mrs G. Brown	Assistant Lecturer
	Mrs S. Hutcheson	Assistant Lecturer
	L. A. Iles	Lecturer
	W. E. Jones	Senior Lecturer
	J. A. Kemp	Lecturer
	K. Kohler	Lecturer
	J. D. M. H. Laver	Lecturer
	J. M. Y. Simpson	Assistant Lecturer
	Mrs E. T. Uldall	Senior Lecturer
Content of course	Phonetic and phonological theory, instrumental phonetics, acoustic phonetics, practical ear-training with informants, general phonetic performance and performance in different languages. The course will consist of lectures, tutorials, practical classes, laboratory work and seminars.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must be graduates of Edinburgh or of another approved university, or possess qualifications approved by the Faculty of Arts.
Fees	£60.
General	Holders of the Diploma in Phonetics may proceed to higher degrees (M.Litt. and Ph.D.). Applications to the Matriculation Office, Old College, The University, Edinburgh 8, before 15th May for the following October.

20. UNIVERSITY OF ESSEX, School of Comparative Studies (Language Centre)

Course of study	Graduate scheme of study leading to the degree of Master of Arts in Applied Linguistics
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June
Staff (1966)	P. D. Stevens	Professor of Applied Linguistics and Director of the Centre

H. H. Stern	Reader
J. O. Ellis	Fellow in General Linguistics
P. S. N. Russell-Gebbett	Senior Lecturer in Spanish
P. Standish	Assistant Lecturer in Spanish
R. Ogle	Assistant Lecturer in Spanish
L. M. O'Toole	Lecturer in Russian
P. T. Culhane	Lecturer in Russian
E. J. Midlane	Senior Instructor in Russian
P. S. Mirski	Senior Instructor in Russian
J. Ross	Lecturer in French
F. Camacho	Lecturer in Portuguese
J. B. Kay	Senior Research Officer
H. D. Berg	Research Officer
R. Haden	Research Officer
A. Jameson	Research Assistant

Content of course

The Mastership Scheme in Applied Linguistics is an advanced professional scheme which offers opportunities for linguistic studies in relation to language teaching.

It includes:

- (i) Introduction to the linguistic sciences and related studies;
- (ii) Theory and practice of language teaching;
- (iii) Descriptive and applied linguistics of one language;
- (iv) Two special subjects to be chosen from the following: psychology, linguistic sociology, stylistics, contemporary literature, a case study of foreign language learning; or alternatively a dissertation.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates should be graduates of an approved university, have some years of experience in teaching and preferably hold a qualification in teaching. Experience in administration or research may be considered as equivalent to teaching experience and qualification.

Fees

£75.

Number of places 1967/68

20.

General

The scheme is primarily intended for graduates concerned with the teaching of foreign languages in schools, colleges and universities, producers of course materials and advisers. Applications are welcomed from teachers of foreign languages in Britain and from teachers of English and other languages abroad. A near-native command of English is pre-supposed. The Language Centre is well-equipped with language laboratories and offers students opportunities for becoming acquainted with various technological aids to language teaching.

Applications to The Director of the Language Centre before 31st March for the following October.

21. UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Course of study	Postgraduate Diploma in English as a Second Language (Course A)
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June
Staff (1966)	English Language and General Linguistics T. F. Mitchell Professor of English Language and General Linguistics J. W. Spencer Senior Lecturer D. Barber A. P. Cowie T. L. Davidson J. D. Fox F. Liefrink J. B. Pride Phonetics P. A. D. MacCarthy Senior Lecturer in Phonetics Miss Beatrice Honikman Miss Marion A. Shirt
Content of course	(1) General linguistics, grammatical and lexical analysis of English, phonology of English, phonetics with special reference to English, contemporary English literature; (2) Seminar in teaching materials and aids; (3) One of the following options: stylistics, semantics, dialectology, English literature, any other approved subject; (4) A dissertation comprising a piece of original research on an approved topic.
Entrance qualifications	The course is intended primarily for British graduates intending to teach English abroad, who are already experienced teachers.
Fees	£100.
Number of places 1967/68	15—20.
General	Facilities are available for taking a higher degree (M.A. and Ph.D.), depending on examination results for the Diploma.
	Applications to The Registrar, University of Leeds, Leeds 2, before 31st March for the following October.

22. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON

University College or School of Oriental and African Studies

Course of study	Academic Postgraduate Diploma in Phonetics
Length of course	Normally 2 academic years: October—June
Staff (1966)	University College D. B. Fry Professor of Experimental Phonetics A. C. Gimson Reader in Phonetics J. D. O'Connor Reader in Phonetics J. T. Pring Reader in Phonetics Frieda Goldman-Eisler Reader in Psycholinguistics G. F. Arnold Lecturer J. R. Baldwin Lecturer Marguerite Chapallaz Lecturer A. J. Fourcin Lecturer Olive M. Tooley Lecturer J. C. Wells Lecturer H. J. Warkentyne Assistant Lecturer School of Oriental and African Studies C. E. Bazell Professor of General Linguistics Eugenie J. A. Henderson Professor of Phonetics R. H. Robins Professor of General Linguistics J. Carnochan Reader in Phonetics Eileen M. Whitley Senior Lecturer in Phonetics J. E. Buse Lecturer in Linguistics Theodora Bynon Lecturer in Comparative Linguistics J. Kelly Lecturer in Phonetics R. K. Sprigg Lecturer in Phonetics Natalie Waterson Lecturer in Phonetics J. T. Wright Lecturer in Phonetics
Content of course	A. General phonetic theory. B. The phonetics of English. C. The phonetics of an approved foreign language. D. Special subject—one of the following: teaching the pronunciation and intonation of English and the selected foreign language; application of phonetics to the historical study of (a) English or (b) an approved foreign language; speech therapy; experimental phonetics. E. Practical work in phonetics.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates must be either (a) graduates of this or another approved university whose undergraduate courses have in the opinion of the University included a suitable preliminary training, or (b) have satisfied the University that their previous education and experience qualify them to rank on the same level as graduates approved under (a) for this purpose.

Fees U.C.L. £62; S.O.A.S. £57. 10. 0. per annum. Registration fee £5. Examination fee £18.

General There are facilities for taking higher degrees (M.Phil. General Linguistics and Phonetics; Ph.D.). A Certificate of Proficiency in English Phonetics for Foreign Students can also be taken at University College.

Applications to The Registrar, University College London, Gower Street, London, W.C.1, or The Registrar, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1, before 31st May for the following October.

23. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, School of Oriental and African Studies

Course of study Academic Postgraduate Diploma in General Linguistics

Length of course 2 academic years: October—June

Staff (1966)

C. E. Bazell	Professor of General Linguistics
Eugenie J. A. Henderson	Professor of Phonetics
R. H. Robins	Professor of General Linguistics
J. Carnochan	Reader in Phonetics
Eileen M. Whitley	Senior Lecturer in Phonetics
J. E. Buse	Lecturer in Linguistics
Theodora Bynon	Lecturer in Comparative Linguistics
J. Kelly	Lecturer in Phonetics
R. K. Sprigg	Lecturer in Phonetics
Natalie Waterson	Lecturer in Phonetics
J. T. Wright	Lecturer in Phonetics
D. Barber	Assistant Lecturer in Phonetics

Content of course

- General principles of linguistic science.
- Phonetic, phonological, grammatical and lexical theory.
- The methods of descriptive linguistics and their application to English and other language material.
- Two of the following special topics: dialectology; historical linguistics; history of linguistics; semantics.
- Practical work.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must be either (a) graduates of this or another approved university whose undergraduate courses have in the opinion of the University included a suitable preliminary training, or (b) have satisfied the University that their previous education and experience qualify them to rank on the same level as graduates approved under (a) for this purpose.

Fees £57. 10. 0. per annum. University registration fee £5. Examination fee £18.

General A phonetics laboratory is available. There are facilities for taking higher degrees (M.Phil. General Linguistics and Phonetics; Ph.D.).

Applications to The Registrar, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1, before 31st May for the following October.

24. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, University College

Course of study Academic Postgraduate Diploma in General Linguistics

Length of course 2 academic years: October—June

Staff (1966)

M. A. K. Halliday	Head of Department
R. M. W. Dixon
K. H. Albrow
R. D. Huddleston
G. N. Leech

Teaching for this Diploma is also provided by the Department of Phonetics.

Content of course

- General principles of linguistic science.
- Phonetic, phonological, grammatical and lexical theory.
- The methods of descriptive linguistics and their application to English and other language material.
- Two of the following special topics: dialectology; historical linguistics; history of linguistics; semantics.
- Practical work.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates must either (a) be graduates of this or another approved university whose undergraduate courses have in the opinion of the University included a suitable preliminary training, or (b) have satisfied the University that their previous education and experience qualify them to rank on the same level as graduates approved under (a) for this purpose.

Fees £62 per annum. University registration fee £5. Examination fee £18.

Number of places
1967/68

At least 10.

General

The Diploma also provides courses leading to higher degrees (M.Phil. in General Linguistics and Phonetics, and Ph.D.). Candidates registering for higher degree will normally be required to have obtained the above Diploma or equivalent qualification.

Applications to The Registrar, University College London, Gower Street, London, W.C.1, before 1st March, for the following October.

25. UNIVERSITY OF LONDON, University College

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English Linguistic Studies

Length of course Normally 2 academic years (suitably qualified candidates need spend only the first in London).

Staff (1966) Randolph Quirk Professor of English Language
A. C. Gimson Reader in Phonetics
J. D. O'Connor Reader in Phonetics
M. A. K. Halliday Professor of General Linguistics
G. N. Leech Lecturer in English
D. Davy Lecturer in English

Content of course A. Linguistic theory, modern English phonetics and phonology, modern English usage and grammatical structure.
B. Dissertation on an approved subject.
The course will consist of lectures, seminars and tutorials.

Entrance qualifications Candidates must hold an Honours degree in English or in a comparable linguistic discipline, or (in the case of candidates from overseas) must have qualifications of equivalent standard.

Fees First session £62, second session, as a full-time student) £60. Diploma examination £10.

Number of places
1967/68

8.

Applications to The Registrar, University College London, Gower Street, London, W.C.1, before 1st April for the following October.

26. UNIVERSITY OF MANCHESTER

Course of study Diploma in General Linguistics

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) W. Haas Professor of General Linguistics
E. Carney Lecturer in Phonetics
D. J. Allerton Lecturer in General Linguistics
H. W. Peters, S.J. Lecturer in General Linguistics
Subjects other than General Linguistics are studied in the appropriate Faculties and Departments.

Content of course A. General phonetics.
B. Methods of linguistic analysis.
C. Principles of comparative linguistics.
D. Theory of meaning.
E.*A descriptive or historical study of an approved language or group of languages.
F.*One of the following: literary criticism, comparative literary studies, logic, general psychology, educational psychology, introduction to statistics and information-theory, computer programming, social anthropology, audiology, any other subject approved by the Board of the Faculty.
(* The choice of language or group of languages under E and the choice of subject under F will be made in the light of a candidate's previous qualifications.)

Entrance qualifications Candidates must be graduates of this or another approved university, or have other appropriate qualifications.

Fees £68.

Number of places
1967/68

10.

General

This course is designed to provide specialist training for professional linguistic work. It is intended for the prospective teacher of language and literature as well as those qualified in other fields—such as philosophy, psychology, sociology, speech therapy, mission work, or the technology of communication—who wish to acquire knowledge of general linguistic principles and techniques. A phonetics laboratory is available.—The Department of General Linguistics is also responsible for a substantial part of the course leading to the Diploma in the Teaching of English Overseas (See No. 10).

Suitably qualified candidates may read for higher degrees (M.A. and Ph.D.).

Applications to Professor W. Haas, Department of General Linguistics, The University, Manchester 13, by 1st April for the following October.

27. UNIVERSITY OF READING

Course of study	Diploma in Applied Linguistics
Length of course	1 academic year: October—June
Staff (1966)	F. R. Palmer Professor of Linguistic Science P. F. R. Barnes Lecturer R. W. P. Brasington Lecturer D. B. Crystal Lecturer P. H. Matthews Lecturer D. A. Wilkins Lecturer Miss W. P. Finlay Lecturer (Department of French)
Content of course	A.1. General linguistics (including phonetics). 2. The structure of the English language. 3. English as a second or foreign language. B. A dissertation on an approved subject.
Entrance qualifications	Candidates will normally be required to hold a first degree of an approved University and will be eligible for admission on the recommendation of the Head of the Department of Linguistic Science.
Fees	Composition fee £82. 10. 0.
General	This course is intended for experienced or qualified teachers proposing to teach English overseas. The Department of Linguistic Science has a phonetics laboratory and makes use of the University's language laboratory. Applications to The Registrar, University of Reading, before 1st April for the following October.

28. UNIVERSITY OF READING

Course of study	M.A./M.Phil. in Linguistics (by examination)
Length of course	M.A. 1 academic year, October—June M.Phil. 2 academic years

Staff (1966)

F. R. Palmer	Professor of Linguistic Science
P. F. R. Barnes	Lecturer
R. W. P. Brasington	Lecturer
D. B. Crystal	Lecturer
P. H. Matthews	Lecturer
D. A. Wilkins	Lecturer
W. B. Lockwood	Reader (Department of German)
Miss W. P. Finlay	Lecturer (Department of French)

Content of course

M.A.: Four subjects from (1) Practical and theoretical phonetics, (2) Phonological theory, (3) Contemporary grammatical models, (4) Generative grammar, (5) Paralinguistic and prosodic features of language, (6) Stylistic analysis, (7) Semantic theory, (8) Theoretical and practical problems of language contrast, (9) The history of linguistics, (10) Comparative linguistics, (11) Linguistic aspects of language teaching, (12) A detailed study of an aspect of English, (13) A detailed study of an aspect of another approved language.
M.Phil.: M.A. course plus in the second year further specialisation and a dissertation.

Entrance qualifications

Candidates will normally be required to hold a first degree of an approved university and will be eligible for admission on the recommendation of the Head of the Department of Linguistic Science.

Fees

Composition fee £60. 0. 0. per annum.

General

This course is mainly designed for students with some prior knowledge of Linguistics. Students with no previous knowledge may be accepted but will be required to attend lectures on general topics of linguistics. Experienced teachers with no previous knowledge of linguistics may find (1), (3), (8) and (11) a suitable combination. The Department of Linguistic Science has a phonetics laboratory and makes use of the University's language laboratory. Facilities are available for higher degrees (M.Phil. and Ph.D.) by thesis.

Applications to The Registrar, University of Reading, before 1st April for the following October.

29. UNIVERSITY OF YORK, Department of Language

Courses of study	B.Phil., M.Phil. and D.Phil. in Language
Length of course	1 academic year leading to the B.Phil. or to the qualifying examination for M.Phil. or D.Phil., followed by 1 further year for the M.Phil. or 2 further years for the D.Phil.; some part of which may be spent away from York at a place approved by the University for field-work.

Staff (1966)	R. B. Le Page	Professor, Head of Department
	Rebecca Posner	Senior Lecturer, General and Romance Linguistics
	M. W. S. de Silva	Lecturer, General Linguistics and Indic Languages
	Elizabeth Closs	Visiting Lecturer, Syntactical Analysis and English
	G. S. P. Freeman-Grenville	Senior Teaching and Research Fellow, Swahili
	B. Warner	Assistant Lecturer, Russian
	Lecturer to be appointed in Chinese.

Content of course Training in general, descriptive and historical linguistics, the processes of linguistic change, psychological and sociological aspects of linguistic behaviour with special reference to contact situations, and practical descriptive analysis, make up the first-year course leading to the qualifying examination; after which a thesis must be written. The Department co-operates closely with the Department of Education and with the Director of the Language Teaching Centre.

Entrance qualifications A good degree, preferably with Honours, from an approved university. A good command of English, and of at least one ancient, mediaeval or modern language other than modern English. Candidates from other universities without a first degree in Linguistics will not normally be admitted to the B.Phil. course.

Fees £68.

Number of places 1967/68 Up to 15.

Applications as early as possible to The Registrar, University of York, Heslington, York.

30. WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Courses of study Postgraduate Diploma in Linguistic Science (Dip. Ling. Sc.)

Length of course 1 academic year: September—June

Staff (1966) D. F. Bratchell Head of Department of English and Liberal Studies

J. B. Wynn	Director of Studies and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics
D. J. Young	Lecturer in Linguistics
R. G. Hilyer	Assistant Lecturer in Linguistics
Mrs M. Glastonbury	Part-time Lecturer

Content of course

A. Theory of general linguistics: (a) history and methodology of linguistic science; (b) phonetics and phonology; (c) principles of grammatical analysis; (d) principles of lexical analysis.

B. One optional subject from: (a) historical and comparative linguistics; (b) etymology and lexicography; (c) dialectology; (d) second language teaching*; (e) language laboratory techniques*; (f) grammarology; (g) any other approved linguistic topic. (*available only to qualified language teachers).

C. A research exercise of not more than 7,000 words.

D. An oral examination in phonetics.

Entrance qualifications The course is open to students from Britain and overseas. Candidates should have obtained a university degree or equivalent qualification, and should have a mature knowledge of at least one language other than their own. Students from overseas must have a fluent command of English.

Fees £67. 7. 0.

Number of places 1967/68 20.

General Students are trained in the main branches of linguistic analysis, and attend lectures, seminars and tutorials for the purpose. Practical work in linguistic analysis of English and other languages takes place in the language laboratory. Research in linguistics is encouraged.

Applications to The Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.

IV. ENGLISH STUDIES

31. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

Courses of study Certificate in English Studies (Language and Literature)

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

A. Rodger Lecturer in charge, and Lecturer in English Literature
 Miss J. N. Ure Lecturer in English Language
 R. Mackin Lecturer in English Language
 Mrs E. Black Assistant Lecturer in English Literature
 Other members of the Departments of English Language and English Literature also contribute to the course. Pronunciation teaching is undertaken by members of the Department of Phonetics.

Content of course

A. The linguistic structure of modern English: theory and practice of descriptive analysis; language varieties and registers; recognition and production exercises in spoken and written varieties; grammar, lexis, usage and idiom; styles in non-literary discourse; pronunciation practice, including language laboratory exercises.

B. Elementary literary stylistics: practical classes in comprehension, interpretation and critical appreciation. (This section of the course is closely linked with and dependent upon section A)

C. The modern English novel: a survey, with detailed study of chosen works by major novelists.

D. Modern English poetry: detailed study of selections from major poets from 1900 to the present.

E. English Poetry, 1500—1900: genres, conventions and styles, with special study of selected texts.

Entrance qualifications

The course is specially designed to meet the needs of three types of student: (a) advanced undergraduates of overseas universities visiting Britain for one academic year; (b) overseas graduates seeking further intensive study of English Language and Literature on a broad general basis; (c) recently qualified overseas teachers, or senior student teachers, of English Language and Literature.

Fees £65.

Number of places 1967/68

About 20.

Further details from The Secretary, English as a Foreign Language, University of Edinburgh, 25 Buccleuch Place, Edinburgh 8.

Applications to The Dean of the Faculty of Arts, David Hume Tower, George Square, Edinburgh 8, before 1st May for the following October.

32. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

Course of study Ordinary Course in English as a Foreign Language

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966)

A. Rodger Lecturer in charge, and Lecturer in English Literature
 Miss J. N. Ure Lecturer in English Language
 R. Mackin Lecturer in English Language
 Mrs E. Black Assistant Lecturer in English Literature
 Other members of the Departments of English Language and English Literature also contribute to the course. Pronunciation teaching is undertaken by members of the Department of Phonetics.

Content of course

A. Language: (a) The structure of contemporary English; grammar, lexis and varieties of spoken and written English; practical descriptive analysis, and practice in the production of situationally appropriate varieties. (b) Problems of grammar, usage and idiom. (c) Instruction and practice in pronunciation, including language laboratory work.

B. Literature: (a) The use of language in literature; comparison and contrast of literary and non-literary discourse; varieties of English and their use in literary texts; practical comprehension, and interpretation. (b) Detailed study of prescribed modern short stories, novels, plays and poems.

Entrance qualifications

The London University or the Cambridge Certificate of Proficiency in English, or an equivalent qualification. This course is primarily intended for foreign Degree candidates in Arts or Social Sciences, but is also open to non-graduating students who are not qualified to undertake the Certificate course (See No. 31).

Fees £26 for non-graduating students.

Number of places 1967/68

About 20.

Applications to The Dean of the Faculty of Arts, David Hume Tower, George Square, Edinburgh 8, before 28th February for the following October.

33. UNIVERSITY OF EDINBURGH

Course of study Diploma in English Studies

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) Teaching and supervision is undertaken by members of the Departments of English Language and English Literature according to the nature of the course chosen.

Content of course A. English Literature. (1) Textual Studies, Sources and Methods of Research. (2) Two Honours Courses in English Literature or one Honours Course in English Literature, with either a course in Contemporary English Language or the teaching of English overseas. In addition, candidates will submit an exercise in research of about 12,000 words on a subject approved by the Professor of Literature.

B. English Language. (1) A course related to one of the papers in the Final Honours examination in English Language. Some alternative undergraduate course may be approved in some individual cases. (2) Three of the following: (i) a second Honours course in English Language, or (if available) the History of the Scottish Language, or one of the Honours papers in English Literature if approved by the Professors; (ii) Textual Studies, Sources and Methods of Research; (iii) Contemporary English Language; (iv) Phonetics of English; (v) Teaching of English Overseas. In certain special cases candidates may, with the approval of the Professor of English Language, submit an exercise in research as an alternative to sitting one of the examinations in courses (i) to (iv).

Entrance qualifications Candidates must be graduates of an approved university, or persons possessing qualifications approved by the Faculty of Arts.

Fees £60.

Number of places 1967/68 15.

Applications to the Matriculation Office, Old College, The University, Edinburgh 8, before 1st March for the following October.

34. UNIVERSITY OF EXETER

Course of study Testamur in English Language and Literature for Overseas Students

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) K. W. Salter Senior Lecturer in English and Tutor to Overseas Students

R. N. Parkinson Lecturer in English
Mrs V. Lloyd Lecturer in Phonetics
C. H. Page Assistant Lecturer in English

Content of course Course A. Development of English poetry from 1590 to present times, development of English prose, study of Shakespeare's plays, the English novel, the study and practice of English phonetics.

Course B. Development of English drama with special reference to Shakespeare and 17th century dramatists, modern English literature from 1880 to present times, development of English poetry from 1590 to the 19th century, the 19th century novel, modern critical theory and practice.

Entrance qualifications

Either the Certificate of Proficiency in English of the Cambridge Local Examinations Syndicate or a General Certificate of Education issued by an Examining Board in the United Kingdom which includes an Ordinary Level pass in English language or a qualification which would entitle the student to be matriculated in a university in his own country. Course A is suitable for students of English from foreign universities or for intending teachers of English. Course B is recommended for students from universities in the United States. Students may follow both courses.

Fees £60.

Number of places 1967/68 Course A. 30.
Course B. 20.

Applications to The Academic Registrar, University of Exeter, Exeter, Devon, before 31st March for the following October.

35. UNIVERSITY OF LEEDS

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June

Staff (1966) A. Ravenscroft Senior Lecturer in English Literature, Supervisor of the course

Members of staff of the School of English and the Department of Phonetics.

Content of course Two options are available:
(1) Language and Linguistics Option. English phonetics and phonology, contemporary English usage, general linguistics, grammatical and lexical analysis of English, seminar on language teaching materials and aids within the field of English as a second language, bibliography and scholarly method, twentieth-century English literature.

(2) Language and Literature Option. Phonetics and spoken English, contemporary English usage, bibliography and scholarly method, and three of the following, which may be subject to change: Medieval English literature, Shakespeare, drama, poetry (Romantics to T. S. Eliot), novel (19th and 20th centuries), twentieth-century English literature, the literature of a Commonwealth country, folk-life studies (oral literature), language and style.

For both options: A research exercise of at least 10,000 words on an approved subject.

Entrance qualifications

The course is normally taken by overseas students, who must be graduates or possess equivalent qualifications. Applicants are admitted to the Language and Linguistics Option only if the Professor of English Language and General Linguistics and the Supervisor of the Diploma course are satisfied that their previous academic training will enable them to benefit from the linguistics part of the course. The type of student sought is the university or training college lecturer who wishes to acquire additional specialist qualifications.

Fees £100.

Number of places 1967/68 25—30.

General

If a sufficiently high performance is attained the Diploma may be awarded with Distinction. Depending on examination results for the Diploma, a student may be allowed to proceed to a higher degree.

Applications and all communications to The Administrative Assistant, School of English, University of Leeds, Leeds 2, preferably before 31st March for the following October.

36. UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies for Overseas Students: Language and Literature

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June. In exceptional circumstances applicants may be admitted for two terms only (October—March).

Staff (1966)

T. S. B. Hawthorne Lecturer responsible for the course
W. Nash Lecturer in Linguistics

Other members of the academic staff contribute to the course. Candidates are required to attend some of the degree courses in the Honours School of English Studies.

Content of course

A. English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960.

B. The linguistics of present-day English.

C. The history of the English language.

D. A literary or linguistic subject to be selected from a wide range of options available in the degree courses of the Honours School of English Studies.

E. British life and institutions.

F. A dissertation on an approved subject.

Candidates who propose to enter the teaching profession may substitute The present-day English educational system and its recent history for one of options A, B, C or D.

Instruction in phonetics is provided.

There will be an oral test as well as a written examination.

Entrance qualifications

Applicants should normally be graduates of recognised overseas universities or should possess equivalent qualifications.

Fees

£78 for the whole session; £70 for two terms. These fees are subject to alteration without notice.

Number of places 1967/68 24.

General

Candidates will be expected to make full use of the University Language Centre, which has a language laboratory and other audio-visual aids.

Applications to The Registrar, The University, University Park, Nottingham, preferably before the end of January and not later than 31st May for the following October.

37. UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM

Course of study Advanced Certificate in English Studies for Overseas Students: Language and Literature

Length of course 1 academic year: October—June. In exceptional circumstances applicants may be admitted for two terms only (October—March).

Staff (1966) T. S. B. Hawthorne Lecturer responsible for the course
W. Nash Lecturer in Linguistics
Other members of the academic staff contribute to the course. Candidates are required to attend some of the degree courses in the Honours School of English Studies.

Content of course A. English literature, life and thought from 1880-1960.
B. The linguistics of present-day English.
C. Shakespeare.
D. The history of the English language.
E. A literary or linguistic subject to be selected from a wide range of options available in the degree courses of the Honours School of English Studies.
F. British life and institutions.
Candidates who propose to enter the teaching profession may substitute The present-day English educational system and its recent history for one of options listed under A—E above.
Instruction in phonetics is also provided.
There will be an oral test as well as a written examination.

Entrance qualifications Applicants should normally be graduates or undergraduates of recognised overseas universities or members or ex-members of other recognised institutions of higher education.

Fees £75 for the whole session; £70 for two terms. These fees are subject to alteration without notice.

Number of places 1967/68 24.

General Candidates will be expected to make full use of the University Language Centre, which has a language laboratory and other audio-visual aids.

Applications to The Registrar, The University, University Park, Nottingham, preferably before the end of January and not later than 31st May for the following October.

38. WELSH COLLEGE OF ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY, CARDIFF

Course of study Postgraduate Diploma in English Studies for Foreign Students (Dip. Eng. Stud.)

Length of course 1 academic year: September—June

Staff (1966) D. F. Bratchell Head of Department of English and Liberal Studies
J. B. Wynn Director of Studies and Senior Lecturer in Linguistics
R. H. Thornton Lecturer in English Language
D. S. Thomas Lecturer in English Literature
J. L. McCarthy Lecturer in English Literature
D. J. Young Lecturer in Linguistics
Mrs M. Glastonbury Part-time Lecturer in English and Education
R. G. Hilyer Assistant Lecturer in Linguistics

Content of course A. Essay writing and stylistics, phonetics, contemporary English—structure and usage, vocabulary and idiom, English literature, criticism and appreciation.
B. Special subjects. Two of the following must be studied: English literature 1600-1789 or 1789-1900, British life and thought, communication, scientific writing, general linguistics, Shakespeare, any other approved topic.
C. There will be tutorials for practical work in pronunciation, comprehension and exposition.
D. Students may also take a Certificate in Oral Mastery.

Entrance qualifications The course is open to overseas students holding a university degree or equivalent qualification. In a few cases suitable non-graduates can be admitted.

Fees £67. 7. 0.

Number of places 1967/68 30.

General The course is designed for overseas graduates wishing to spend a further year of intensive study in English language and literature. It presupposes a considerable command of English on the part of the student, together with an enthusiasm for English life, literature and institutions. A language laboratory is available for oral work.

Applications to The Registrar, Welsh College of Advanced Technology, Cardiff, before 30th June for the following September.