Sources of copyright free images.

Two of the best sites for images are Pixabay.com and Morguefile.com -both of these sites have a wide range of high quality photographs, illustrations, vector graphics, even short videos, that you can use for any purpose, including commercially, with no attribution at all required. This is very useful both for you as a teacher and for your learners if they are making video projects etc.

Google Images

You can also use Google images to search for copyright images, using the Advanced Search facility.

Go To Google images <https://images.google.com/>

Type in a key word, select Tools and you will find options to select images filtered by reuse policy.
