

'Meet the Editors'

CREW Networking Event

Please mark your calendars for the next Connecting CREW networking event, featuring a 'Meet the Editors' session during which the editors of four leading journals on work, employment and organisation will talk about where they see research headed in their journals' fields. A wine reception will follow.

Confirmed speakers:

Kim Hoque, associate editor, Human Relations;
Professor, University of Warwick

Paul Marginson, associate editor, ILR Review;
Emeritus Professor, University of Warwick

Ida Sabelis, joint editor-in-chief, Gender, Work & Organization;
Associate Professor, Vrije Universiteit

Melanie Simms, joint editor-in-chief, Work, Employment & Society;
Professor, University of Leicester

Tuesday, 25 April 2017, 16:00-18:00.
Wolfson Exchange, University Library

To help us plan, please email crew@warwick.ac.uk to register

Connecting Research on Work and Employment (CREW) is a network devoted to the promotion and development of research on work and employment. It seeks to facilitate interaction between researchers across departments and faculties, and provide a common focal point for the internationally recognised work and employment research community at the University of Warwick.

