

What is a graduate job?

A head-to-head on graduate job classifications

Date: 9th November 2016

Venue: Wolfson Research Exchange Seminar Rooms 1 and 2, University of Warwick

Time: 12.30-17.30 (Lunch and refreshments provided)

Description

The increase in the proportion of graduates working outside traditional areas of graduate employment, changes in technology and the labour market, and the shift in the definitions of skill towards encompassing interpersonal abilities, have redefined the concept of 'graduate' jobs. Two leading graduate job classifications are the Purcell and Elias (2013) and the Green and Henseke (2014) approaches – but how do they differ? This seminar provides a unique opportunity for expert discussion of the developments in graduate job classifications and their contributions to understanding the recent changes in the graduate labour market.

Speakers

Prof Francis Green Dr Golo Henseke

LLAKEs Centre for Research on Learning and Life Chances, Institute of Education, University College London

Prof Kate Purcell Prof Peter Elias

Institute for Employment Research, University of Warwick

Keynote:
Dr Charlie Ball

Head of Higher Education Intelligence at Graduate Prospects

This seminar is free to attend but places are limited.

For more information and registration, visit:

http://www2.warwick.ac.uk/fac/soc/ier/news/what_is_graduate_job/

Contact Daria Luchinskaya <D.Luchinskaya@warwick.ac.uk> for any queries or further information.

This event is generously funded by:

Warwick
Faculty of Social Sciences