Items for Discussion
007	Motion to the Assembly: Report of the Assembly Working Party on Antisemitism and Racism Professor Maureen Freely, Professor Naomi Eilan, Professor Gabrielle Lynch and Professor Victor Tadros presented an overview of the Report of the Assembly Working Party, referenced in Motion 1: “The Assembly resolves to endorse the report of the Assembly Working Party on Antisemitism and Racism” (Paper 007-A280224) Key points raised were as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The Assembly Working Party (AWP) was established in 2021 with a mandate to make recommendations on the handling of allegations of racism against staff or students and to consider recommending that the University adopt the Jerusalem Declaration on Antisemitism (JDA).</li> <li>• The AWP undertook extensive conversations with experts and stakeholders across the University community and the sector. Its findings focused on national and international debates around the JDA and International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) definitions of antisemitism, the University’s disciplinary processes; and the inclusion of consideration of antisemitism in new and emerging antiracism initiatives and policies at all levels of the University.</li> <li>• The recommendations set out in its report covered the use of definitions of antisemitism and approaches to improving understanding of antisemitism and relevant legislation including: the need for caution in applying definitions of antisemitism in University disciplinary processes; the need for legal considerations in University disciplinary processes relating to complaints of antisemitism; measures to ensure that Jewish students and staff did not experience discrimination; raising awareness of the implications of the Higher Education (Freedom of Speech) Act and recently revised disciplinary processes; the future oversight of ongoing work in this area.</li> </ul> Comments and responses were invited, summarised as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The work of the AWP welcomed and its findings supported.</li> <li>• The recent outcome of the employment tribunal case that Professor David Miller brought against the University of Bristol was based on a complex application of the law and the outcome did not change the findings of the AWP report.</li> <li>• At a national level there was a focus on the use by Government and sector bodies of the IHRA definition of antisemitism but there would be a need to balance this with promotion of free speech.</li> <li>• Although the original brief of the AWP had focused on antisemitism, recommendations were not intended to be exceptionalist. The recommended lecture series on current and historical antisemitism could therefore be broadened to include other forms of racism.</li> <li>• Views which some may find offensive may be permissible under the Higher Education (Freedom of Speech) Act, provided that they fall within the law.</li> <li>• The recommendations set out in the report focused on developing a good understanding of antisemitism amongst those involved in education and disciplinary processes rather than relying on definitions. The report did not therefore recommend use of any specific definition. Although it could be helpful to consult definitions, consideration of context was essential in proscriptive processes.</li> </ul>

A vote was then taken on Motion 1, with the results outlined in the table below:
